The Ravelin is a hollow work and contains, on its left face a small Advanced Gate, with its own arched bridge. This was originally served by a drawbridge. The ravelin is set within the main land front ditch and is isolated from the counterscarp. The ravelin contains two embrasures in each face, and an embrasure and an en barbette parapet in each flank. Ramps in the gorge of the ravelin, originally pas-de-souris, provided access down into the ditch.
